Basic Mobile Air Conditioning

City & Guilds Level 3 Award Services & Refrigerant Handling Assessment

One Day Course

Designed for candidates with existing knowledge, relevant qualifications, or prior experience working with air-conditioning systems.

Two Day Course

Designed for candidates with little to no previous air-conditioning experience. This allows additional time for fundamental theory, practical training, and hands-on assessment.

In January 2015 F-gas became a legal requirement for air-conditioning work, including tractors and other mobile machinery. It requires anyone handling refrigerant (R134a, R1234yf etc...) to hold the appropriate qualification.

AP Air's City & Guilds F-gas course covers the safe handling, recovery, recycling, and charging of refrigerants used in air conditioning and refrigeration systems. Candidates learn how to identify and prevent refrigerant leaks, follow environmental regulations, and correctly use recovery and service equipment. For those seeking a more advanced level of system knowledge, further learning about diagnostics and repairs can be arranged.

Successful candidates will be issued a digital City & Guilds certificate.

A minimum/maximum of 3 people. Prices per person plus VAT
